

JOY TO STYLISH BRIDES

If all you've been wishing for is a one-of-a-kind gown by an acclaimed designer but don't want to risk buying online or have no time to go gown-shopping overseas, your dream is fulfilled with the recent opening of The Prelude Bridal. Launched last October, the boutique stocks breathtaking gowns from international names Amanda Wakeley, David Fielden and Junko Yoshioka, as well as bridal accessories by Jenny Packham, Haute Bride and Vivien Sheriff. Here, bridal gowns may be adapted to your personal preferences and even altered into cocktail dresses post-wedding. Stunning evening gowns are available too. The Prelude Bridal also offers recommendations for wedding planners, florists, photographers, hairstylists and makeup artists. Should you have your eyes on a gown or accessory not available in-store, the boutique could specially source it for you. Check it out at 21A Duxton Hill, tel: 6221-4982.

PINK POWER

To celebrate its 175th anniversary, Tiffany & Co. has unveiled the mesmerising Rubedo metal, the first such creation in the company's history. Showcasing the richness of gold, brilliance of silver and warmth of copper, the Rubedo metal is a milestone in modern metallurgy. Lightweight yet strong, highly polished and lustrous, and very importantly, flattering to the skin, the metal flaunts an elegant blush that evokes the light of a dawning sky. Its debut in the Tiffany 1837 designs (of a necklace and pendant of interlocking circles of Rubedo metal and sterling silver, and a full Rubedo metal cuff, ring and padlock) should delight tasteful brides, as the pieces are perfect with either a chic solemnisation dress or a graceful bridal gown.
